CONJUGATION OF THE SPANISH VERB CONOCER

Te conozco mosco (among Colombian people, this expression is used to tell someone you know him/her very well): el verbo conocer (to know).

The verb “conocer” is one of the most used verbs in the Spanish language. However, its use is different, as long as to know can mean weather to have the knowledge about something or someone about something or someone, the verb conocer has only one of these meanings. In English, we just have the verb to know but in Spanish, we have 2 verbs; “saber” and “conocer”.

Additionally, we use the verb “meet” when we met a person for the first time in English. However, in Spanish we use the verb “conocer”, no matter if it is for the first time or not.

Today, we will focus on the verb conocer.

Let’s see!

Before you continue reading, remember:

- “You” is only one pronoun, which have different meanings. However, in Spanish we have 3 important pronouns: tu, usted, ustedes. Tu is used when you have confidence with the person you are talking to, usted is a more formal and ustedes is used to talk about more than one person we are directing to.
- In Spanish, we have unspoken subjects, so it is not needed to use a pronoun every time as we do in English.
- We use written accents in Spanish, be careful. On the opposite, you will have miscommunication problems in your writing.

time in the past, but they have not ended in the present: He conocido muchas personas desde enero (I have met many people since January.).

We use the pluperfect to talk about actions that were developed in the past before an action in the past which we had talked about before: Cuando nos encontramos, ya lo habíamos conocido (When we met, we had already met him.).

We use the perfect future to talk about actions that will already be developed in a given time: a final de año, habrás conocido muchas personas nuevas (By the end of the year, you will have met many new people.).

We use perfect conditional to talk about actions that probably would have happened, but they didn't happen, these phrases are usually after another one that introduced it: Si el taxi no hubiera tardado, habría conocido al cantante (If the taxi hadn't been late, I would have met the actor.).

In Spanish, we also have two other verbal moods: the subjunctive and the imperative mood.

Common forms of the Subjunctive Mood

Subject	Present	Imperfect Preterit	Pluperfect	Perfect Preterit
Yo (I)	Conozca	Conociera	Hubiera conocido	Haya conocido
Tu (you)	Conozcas	Conocieras	Hubieras conocido	Hayas conocido
Él (he)/ella (she) /usted	Conozca	Conociera	Hubiera conocido	Haya conocido
Nosotros (we)	Conozcamos	Conociéramos	Hubiéramos conocido	Hayamos conocido
Ustedes (you: plural)/ellos (They: masculine) /ellas (They: feminine)	Conozcan	Conocieran	Hubieran conocido	Hayan conocido

Subjunctive is typically used to express wishes, wants and hopes. And it is usually introduced by the words like que, ojalá, espero (que), si..., cuando.

The present form is used to express a wish that we would like to happen in the present: Cuando lo conozca, le pediré un autografo - (When I meet him, I will ask him for a sign.).

The imperfect preterit form to express a wish about something that hypothetically could happen: Ojalá lo conocieras - (If only you knew him.).

The pluperfect is used to express a wish that we would like it had happened in a past situation: Si lo hubieras conocido, no dirías esto (If you had met him, you wouldn't say that.).

The perfect preterit form is used to express a wish about something it happens in the past but in some cases, is used to talk about a hope we have in the future: Cuando lo hayas conocido, lo amarás (When you meet him, you will love him.).

Let's review the Imperative Mood:

The imperative mode is generally used to give orders, advices or instructions. This mode has no tenses, and it has only one conjugation. It is also used just with certain pronouns.

Subject	Imperative
Tu (you)	Conoce
Nosotros (we)	Conozcamos
Ustedes (you: plural)/ellos (They: masculine) /ellas (They: feminine)	Conozcan
English	Spanish
first, meet him	Conócelo primero
let's meet the director	Conozcamos al director
know the rules and avoid problems	Conozcan las reglas y eviten problemas
