

CONJUGATION OF THE VERB IR IN SPANISH

The verb 'ir' is one of the most used verbs in the Spanish language, we use it mainly to talk about moving something or ourselves to a place. It is often confused with the verb Venir, which also denotes movement, but with a different meaning. For example: 'Voy a la fiesta' (I go to the party) in this case, this verb means that we move ourselves to a party. This verb it's also used as an auxiliary verb to build the near future, as it happens in English.

Near future is built using the verb Ir in [present tense + a + the verb in infinitive], similar to English. An example of this is the next sentence:

Voy a comer pizza más tarde - I'm going to eat pizza later.

This verb is mainly used in many expressions in Spanish language, you will know some of them in a bit.

Learning Tips!

Before you continue reading, don't forget the following statements.

- "You" is a pronoun which has different meanings. However, in Spanish we have 3 important pronouns: tú, usted, ustedes. "Tú" is used when you have confidence with the person you are talking to, "usted" is more formal and "ustedes" is used when talking to more than one person.
- In Spanish, we have unspoken subjects so it is not needed to use a pronoun every time as we do in English.
- We use written accents in Spanish, be careful or you will have miscommunication problems in your writing.
- "Ir" is usually used before the preposition.
- This is one of the most irregular verbs in Spanish.

Analyze the previous chart and let's review some examples.

We use present tense to communicate that we go to a place in the present time. For example: Voy al restaurante (I go to the restaurant). However, this tense is mostly used to build the near future, this would be the future "going to" in English, an example of this is: Voy a hacer el trabajo en la tarde (I'm going to do the work this afternoon).

We use perfect preterite to talk mainly about a place we visited. For example; Fui a Bogotá la semana pasada (I went to Bogotá last week).

We use imperfect preterite to express actions that didn't have a determinate beginning nor a determinate ending. For example: Iba a la oficina. (He went to the office). However, this tense can also be used to build a kind of past future, that it is used when we want to talk about something we were about to do. For instance: Íbamos a comer en el restaurante (We were going to eat in the restaurant).

We use the future simple tense to communicate that we will visit a place in a future time: Ellos irán al parque (They will go to the park).

We use the simple conditional tense to express that we would probably visit a place: Tú irías al zoológico (You would go to the zoo).

Subject	Compounded perfect preterit (Present perfect)	pluperfect (past perfect)	Perfect future	Perfect Conditional
Yo (I)	He ido	Había ido	Habré ido	Habría ido
Tú (you)	Has ido	Habías ido	Habrás ido	Habrías ido

Subject	Compounded perfect preterit (Present perfect)	pluperfect (past perfect)	Perfect future	Perfect Conditional
Él (he) / ella (she) / usted (you: formal)	Ha ido	Había ido	Habrá ido	habría ido
Nosotros (we)	Hemos ido	habíamos ido	Habremos ido	habríamos ido
Ustedes (you: plural) / ellos (They: mas.) / ellas (They: fem.)	Han ido	Habían ido	Habrán ido	Habrían ido

Most used perfect tenses of the Indicative Mode

We build compounded tenses using the verb “HABER” (HAVE) and the past participle of the main verb, in this case: ir -> ido. We use the compounded perfect preterite to express that we have visited a place several times since a certain time. For example: He ido al hospital 3 veces (I have gone to the hospital 3 times).

We use the pluperfect to express that we visited a place before an action developed in the past: Antes de encontrarnos, ya habíamos ido a la oficina (Before we met, we had already gone to the office).

We use the perfect future to express that we will have probably visited a place after a certain time. For example: Habremos ido a varios países en unos años (We will have gone to several countries). However, this tense is more commonly used to discuss situations that probably could have happened. For example: Supongo que habrá ido a la escuela (I guess he will have gone to the school).

CONJUGATION OF THE VERB IR IN SPANISH

We use perfect conditional to mention the consequence of an action that could have happened: Si tuviéramos carro, habríamos ido (If we had a car, we would have gone). As you already know, in Spanish we also have two other verbal modes: the subjunctive and the imperative mode.

Common forms of the Subjunctive Mode

Subject	Present	Imperfect Preterite	Pluperfect	Perfect Preterite
Yo (I)	Vaya	Fuera	Hubiera ido	haya ido
Tú (you)	Vayas	Fueras	Hubieras ido	hayas ido
Él (he) / ella (she) / usted (you: formal)	Vaya	Fuera	Hubiera ido	haya ido
Nosotros (we)	Vayamos	Fuéramos	Hubiéramos ido	hayamos ido
Ustedes (you: plural) / ellos (They: mas.) / ellas (They: fem.)	Vayan	Fueran	Hubieran ido	hayan ido
