

SPANISH VERBS - DOLER

No pain, no gain: Conjugation of the verb Doler

OUCH! (“¡Au!” or “¡Ay!” in Spanish): this is the classic sound to recognize pain, but are you able to recognize the forms in which the verb “doler” is presented? If you can’t, don’t worry, you’ve come to the right place to learn!

In Italian they call it “dolore”, in Spanish “dolor” and in English: “pain” (although it can also be translated as “to hurt,” “to grieve,” and “to ache.”). In any language, it’s a feeling that we wouldn’t want to be a part of everyday life, but it is, and the least we want is to be traveling in a Spanish speaking country, feeling bad and not knowing how to express quickly and correctly that something hurts. So, let’s go, let’s get familiar with the conjugations of the verb doler.

Like some pains, the verb doler is irregular.

Not all pains are the same, some come in different ways, shapes and sizes, and so does their conjugation. The verb doler changes according to tenses and persons, therefore, it belongs to the irregular verbs. The best thing to do is to identify each change when using the verb, apply a little memorization, and then use it as much as you can to learn it! And a quick tip, the verb Doler and the verb Mover are conjugated the same way (you’re welcome ☺!).

One thing you may notice throughout today, which we already briefly mentioned to you a moment ago, is that the verb Doler is used in various contexts, but when taken to English this can change depending on the usage, so don’t panic if you see that we suddenly use to pain (or any variant) instead of to hurt!

Not so painful verbals.

Not everything that looks like the word “doler” is a verb that can be conjugated, we call some of those cases: verbals; it is something like a phantom pain, you feel it is there, but in reality, it turns out to be a false alarm.

Verbals will always need another verb that is conjugated in order to be used. Let’s look at some examples so you can tell the difference between a verbal and a verb. If you are the type of person who prefers to talk about things by their name, in Spanish we have three types of verbals:

SPANISH VERBS - DOLER

Verbal	Common Use	Example	English
Infinitive	Doler (to pain) Non conjugated/Noun	Mi dolor es más grande de lo que podría describir	My pain is greater than I could ever describe
Gerund	Doliendo (hurting) gerundio	Me ha estado doliendo mucho la cabeza	My head has been hurting a lot
Participle	Dolido (pained/hurted) Adjective	Parecía dolido con la decisión que tomó	He looked hurted by the decision he made

Doler, a reflexive verb

These words are: me (yo), te (tú), le (él/ella/usted), nos (nosotros), les (ellos/ellas/ustedes).

When you are going to use it you must keep in mind that you will always use the verb in the conjugation that you would use for the third person, regardless of the verb tense and person, and it will look like this:

	Spanish	English
Present	Me duele mucho el estómago luego de esos nachos picantes.	My stomach hurts a lot after those spicy nachos.
Preterite:	A todos nos dolió que Messi se fuese del Barcelona.	We all hurt when Messi left Barcelona

Doler Conjugation: Indicative Mood

The indicative mode is one of the simplest versions in which verbs are presented to us, they are sentences where the action is being said in a precise tense (present, past, future)

Simple Tenses of the Indicative Mood

Subject	Present	Preterite	Imperfect	Conditional	Future
yo	duelo	dolí	dolía	dolería	doleré
tú	dueles	doliste	dolías	dolerías	dolerás
él/ella/usted	duele	dolió	dolía	dolería	dolerá
nosotros	dolemos	dolimos	dolíamos	doleríamos	doleremos
ellos/ellas/ustedes	duelen	dolieron	dolían	dolerían	dolerán
Ustedes	duelen	dolieron	dolían	dolerían	dolerán

Examples:

A ustedes les duelen los pies de tanto caminar - Your feet hurt from so much walking.

Te dolerán las manos con ese ejercicio - Your hands will hurt with that exercise.

Haber Conjugation: Compound Tenses of the Indicative Mood

Subject	Preterite Perfect	Preterite pluperfect	Conditional perfect	Future perfect
yo	he dolido	había dolido	habría dolido	habré dolido
tú	has dolido	habías dolido	habrías dolido	habrás dolido
él/ella/usted	había dolido	había dolido	habría dolido	habrá dolido
nosotros	habíamos dolido	habíamos dolido	habríamos dolido	habremos dolido
ellos/ellas/ustedes	habían dolido	habían dolido	habrían dolido	habrán dolido

Doler Conjugation: Subjunctive Mood

The subjunctive mood, unlike the indicative, deals with more abstract things, such as desires and hypotheses. It is less common in Spanish, but as you increase your level, you will find occasions to use it.

Simple Tenses of the Subjunctive Mood

Subject	Present	Imperfect	Imperfect 2	Future
yo	duela	doliera	doliese	doliere
tú	duelas	dolieras	dolieses	dolieres
él/ella/usted	duela	doliera	doliese	doliere
nosotros	dolamos	doliéramos	doliésemos	doliéremos
ellos/ellas/ustedes	duelan	dolieran	doliesen	dolieren

Other examples:

Si le doliese la cabeza, no querría ir a una fiesta - If she had a headache, she wouldn't want to go to a party.

Que nos doliésemos por Sense8 no la trajo de regreso - That we grieved for Sense8 did not bring it back.

Compound Tenses of the Subjunctive Mood

Subject	Present perfect	Past Perfect (Pluperfect)	Past Perfect 2 (Pluperfect 2)	Future perfect
yo	haya dolido	hubiera dolido	hubiese dolido	hubiere dolido
tú	hayas dolido	hubieras dolido	hubieses dolido	hubieres dolido
él/ella/usted	haya dolido	hubiera dolido	hubiese dolido	hubiere dolido
nosotros	hayamos dolido	hubiéramos dolido	hubiésemos dolido	hubiéremos dolido
ellos/ellas/ustedes	hayan dolido	hubieran dolido	hubiesen dolido	hubieren dolido

Doler Conjugation: Imperative Mood

This is the command mode, but we know, it's rare to order someone to feel pain, but let's see some uses:

Imperative Mood's Conjugations

Subject	Affirmative	Negative
	(pain / let's pain)	(don't pain / let's not pain)
tú	duela	no duelas
nosotros	dolamos	no dolamos
ustedes	duelan	no duelan

Last examples:

¡Dolamos sin verguenza, amigos! - (Let's) Pain without shame, folks!

Estómago, hoy es un mal día, no duelas, ¡por favor! - Stomach, today is a bad day, don't hurt, please!

Let's practice!

Let's go through a couple of exercises so that you can keep your memory fresh and know what to answer with the theory close at hand:

1. Si me _____ la cabeza no podría ir a nadar - If I had a headache I couldn't go swimming.
2. A ella le hubiese _____ mucho si su equipo perdía el mundial - She would have been very hurt if her team had lost the World Cup.
3. ¡Que no te _____ las manos justo cuando te digo que barras! - Don't let your hands hurt just when I tell you to sweep!
4. Me _____ lo que dijiste de mí - I was hurt by what you said about me
5. Tu traición me _____ pero ya sabía qué estaba pasando - Your betrayal would hurt me but I already knew it was happening

Answers

There is a saying in Spanish that goes “No hay mal que por bien no venga” (Every cloud has a silver lining), in this case, if you made a mistake, no duelas, from the mistake the master is born!

1. doliera
2. dolido
3. duelan
4. dolió
5. dolería
